1st Annual International Volcanic Wine Conference

Tuesday, March 27, 2018 New York City

YOU'RE INVITED

To an exclusive workshop on the volcanic wine region of Lake County, California, that will take place during this year's International Volcanic Wine Conference.
John Szabo MS will moderate a discussion led by California-based soil scientist, vineyard consultant and wine producer, Paul Skinner, and vine-grower, Peter Molnár.
The workshop will focus on Lake County's leading red variety, Cabernet Sauvignon, and the subtle differences it displays from different AVAs and vineyard sites.
Taste a range of wines from six vineyards, including a non-volcanic comparative set.

"Lake County is California's youngest, and only still-active volcanic wine region, where extremes of climate and volcanic soils make for some of the North Coast's most distinctive wines.

John Szabo MS, author of Volcanic Wines... Salt, Grit and Power
